

Declaration of the New Human Rights and The Inner State, 2012

PREAMBLE :

The representatives of the peoples of the Earth, constituted in a first global nation, beyond all frontiers and limits of the present states, united for what they have in common to protect in their individual and collective interest, consider, as was the case in 1948, that the elaboration of new rights appears to be particularly necessary.

They solemnly reaffirm, at the level of the first global nation, that the “Rights of Man and of Citizen” enshrined in the Declaration of 1789 and its evolution in 1948, as inalienable and sacred rights.

They declare, in addition to the previous rights, new rights that aim at the concrete radiance of every human being.

Founded on the autonomy and responsibility of individuals and nations, they propose to go beyond partisan dogmatic traditions to unite the efforts of each person into an interest that goes beyond that of the part(ie)s: to concretely improve the inner state of each individual, on a collective scale.

Also, beyond the previous rights hardly respected by the governments of the different nations, these new rights are meant to be accessible and applicable by each individual, whatever his social condition, the political regime or the culture in which he lives.

They declare, in the interest of all, for each citizen of the Earth, the following new rights and standards :

I - The right to know one's true nature and life purpose in order to find one's useful place on Earth, and thus to reach a state of profound inspiration and deep legitimacy, an Inner state of full satisfaction, in the different domains of one's existence and to ensure an essential victory: to live a life with no regrets.

This is declared as the primary right, the following rights are there to give access to it.

So that this virtuous individual dynamic spreads to all, they declare the nation of The Inner State, as the first global nation beyond all frontiers, without links of dependency or links of power, its sole purpose is to help people access The Inner State described above, to help them build their lives according to this standard, to protect their rights and to make their voices heard. This first global nation is open to all, and its access is made spontaneously by entering oneself into The Inner State described in this primary right.

II - The right to access the service of adjustment of one's life path and one's way of functioning. This service will be provided by new specialists, the Ambassadors of The Inner State, to accompany people to help them respectfully listen to their true nature and to make the necessary adjustments to ensure that they access this primary right.

III - The right to personal radiance, which allows, with deep respect for them, to detach and to free oneself from the influences of the cultures, of the religions, of the models, from the moment these models happen to be limiting or threatening to this primary right.

IV - The right to Global Success, which sets a new standard, that allows to ensures a personal success, which simultaneously includes that of others, that of the environment and Nature. Today more than ever, the satisfaction of these three dimensions seems unavoidable to ensure this primary right.

V - The right to access the University of Life, the school where one can learn how to transform a state of victimhood or of handicap into a unique talent, to use it in a beneficent way for oneself and for others, in order to find the full satisfaction and dignity that one deserves and to ensure the sustainability of this primary right.

VI - The right to be in good posture to succeed, to ascertain or to have someone ascertain whether, concretely, in one's body, beyond theories, The Inner State of non-defence and full satisfaction is verified in oneself, on a daily basis, in order to ensure this primary right.

VII - The right to inspiration, and to the development of one's abilities to connect to one's own source of inspiration in order to actualise in a personal and autonomous way, the inspired and inspiring projects that requires the continuous evolution towards this primary right.

VIII - The right to access a responsible culture, so that one can regain power over one's life, realising that what one thinks, says and does; what one "cultivates", acts on one's reality. By becoming responsible for "what one cultivates", everyone regains power over what everyone is creating and can best access this primary right.

The application of these 8 new rights opens up to new standards :

★ A new international standard of education :

By giving access to these rights and to The Inner State, parents and teachers allow each child to know his "life purpose" and his useful place on Earth, and to give him the necessary competencies to be able to live from it, in order to participate in a Global Success.

★ A new international standard of health :

By giving access to these rights and to The Inner State, each health professional, beyond preventing and treating diseases, helps to stimulate vitality, to protect and to optimise the health, the satisfaction, and the radiance of individuals and to perpetuate their reason to be alive, their "life purpose".

★ A new international standard of economic dignity :

By giving everyone access to these rights and to The Inner State, beyond protecting him and making him dependent on the help he receives, each individual tends to become strong and dignified by his autonomy and his freedom.

★ A new international standard of Public Safety :

By giving everyone access to these rights and to The Inner State, all fellow citizens tend to free themselves from the tensions of frustration and jealousy, to build their lives in a satisfying way, in prevention of the acts of violence, of terrorism or of barbarism.

★ A new international standard of Global Success :

Where every citizen has access to these rights and to The Inner State, so that he does not have to work against his heart, but to enjoy his talent, as a real benefit to him, to the people he serves and to the environment. A beneficent service, of which it is of his interest not to retire in order to transmit his experience and to perpetuate his reasons for continuing to live.

★ A new international political standard :

Where each political actor is called to give access to these rights and to The Inner State, to allow a deep and gentle global evolution of society.

★ A new international standard of autonomy and freedom of nations :

Where each nation accesses these same rights in order to make itself independent from aid, and not to have to resort to debt and alienate themselves, in order to become strong and dignified of its autonomy and therefore of its freedom and prevent economic or political migration.

★ A new international standard of rights :

The eight new human rights, and the access to The Inner State, differ from the previous rights, constituted of so-called external rights, allowing the protection of the civil security (police), the health (social security), the elderly (pension fund), the right to work (unions); the new Human rights aim at the protection and at the development of inner resources. They are intended to be a central axis of evolution, not theoretical or applied from external structures of which one becomes dependent, but whose Force comes from within.
